About This Content

One of the newest electric multiple units for the Northeast Corridor comes to Train Simulator in Metro-North's familiar bare metal and red livery.

Built by Kawasaki at Lincoln, Nebraska for use on the New Haven Line, the M8 first entered service in March 2011 as a replacement to the current fleet of M2, M4 and M6 multiple units. Similar in body style to the M7, more than 300 units have been delivered to Metro-North so far, and feature multiple power pick-up – third rail and overhead pantograph – which can be changed by the engineer whilst on the move.

The two-car Kawasaki M8 has a top speed of 100mph (161km/h) and the model for Train Simulator features driving cabs and passenger views, switchable power modes and dynamic in-cab display screens showing instrument readouts and power pick-up mode.

The locomotive is also Quick Drive compatible, giving you the freedom to drive the Metro-North Kawasaki M8 on any Quick Drive enabled route for Train Simulator, such as those available through Steam. Also included are scenarios specifically for the NEC: New York-New Haven route (available separately and required to play these scenarios).

Scenarios

Four scenarios for the NEC: New York-New Haven route:

Really nice i love the detail on it BUT it has a huge down side to it. It usese Queensland Rail IMU 120 sounds so that means DTG came to Australia and got the sounds off of a IMU 120 but yeah i recommend it.

(feel free to add me as a friend). This is worth buying if your into the American routes and trains, I know it's \u00a311.99 and I would probably buy it when it's on sale but I personally think it's worth the buy as it's fun to drive, it's not got overly complicated controls like some of the other trains have for TS2016 for driving.. Well first and foremost, lets clear some things up about this DLC... Those who are still reporting an FPS frop must have other issues - the patch back in December corrected the issue, which wasn't as wide spread\/as big an FPS hit as was proclaimed by some users. And also the 15 mile an hour limit that some are hitting is due to their inability to read\/understand directions or how to disable the alerter. But you can also find that out by reading forums, and by looking at youtube videos of the train zipping along at 90+ mph.

That said, this was a highly anticipated piece of stock and it fits perfectly with the New York to New Haven line. And while this is not a perfect DLC - nothing is. Not any more at lease... For those who want to add the most recognizable piece of metro north's rolling stock definately look past those misinformed reviews and into picking this up.. The Kawasaki M8 EMU (now that it has since been patched) has improved to a playable state, and is a decent, highly detailed piece of DLC. Some of the sounds are recycled, but with the improvments such as darker windows, and the large FPS improvement (about double the framerates for me), I can finally recommend this DLC to anyone who wants to add to their NY-NH line collection.. Its a good DLC for Railworks, the interior is nice and so is the passenger view, its hard to coast at 0% throttle sometimes, lags in the passenger view and its easy to lose points in carrer scenarios when stopping, but its not too hard to overcome that. 8\/10. The order of the Kawasaki M8's was completed on July 13, 2015. Really well design, but the 15 mph alert is killing me.

Train is bugging on some other addon routes.

Can recommend if you use the suggested route, but not for others.... THIS SOUNDS LIKE A 395 !!!!!!. I will be honest, I only recommend this DLC because there are some custom\/workshop scenarios that need it.
If you don't need it, don't buy it!! There are too many flaws with the AI in this DLC.

To name some:
- AI leaves or disappears all of a sudden.
- AI collides with another causing a derailment.

In both occasions it gives you the Game Over message.
Just so you know, I've currently tried to play this over ten times and it keeps happening. :(. This train looks nice, and is pretty fun to drive. The textures look pretty good, the train is easy to control, although the sounds are not that good. I would recommend this train when on sale, but probably not at full price.

The Metro-North Kawasaki M8 is good, the details are amazing but they're some problems with both the physics and sounds, the sounds don't match the M8 in real life at all except for the horn which you can't really hold out, its only like a little "toot". The physics aren't good eathier as the acceleration is slow and the braking is just wrong. Last but not least, the destination sign on the top and sides of the train do work but only for career and some workshop scenarios for thoes scenario creators who know how to make the destination sign work which is only a few. The destination sign should have like a button like the Acela or using the control panel on the train. However, I do reccomend this only because its needed for most scenarios, it goes good with the route and as long as you have Fan Railers (cActUsjUiCe is his steam account") mods for the train, its almost flawless and makes up for it huge since not only does it completly change the train via physics and sounds, its free! In conclusion, I do recommend this DLC but for only the 3 limited reasons.. Great looking model but buggy. This was one of the most anticipated add-ons for the NEC: New York-New Haven route but alas it is virtually useless do to frame rate issues when more than 2 consists are running. As of Dec 2014 it has not been fixed despite the promise of an update. I can not recommend this pretty EMU until it is patched, which I suspect will never happen at this rate. It's honestly made it so that I no longer impulse buy content when it's first released, especial considering the history of Dovetail patching buggy content.. very good train set. Great locomotive to go with New York New Haven. It has cable and 3rd rail use. I like driving it alot. First Metr-North train made so now you can use it on the New Canaan Branch or the line to GCT on the route. I recommend this locomotive.. this is an execelent train to drive highly recommended.
